Warheit's "The Use of Computers in Information Retrieval." It displays a keen understanding of the basics of information science and states fundamental criteria for mechanization of the information retrieval process in concise terms.

If you have been a follower of the first aforementioned alternative, there is not much here for you that is new. If, however, you belong to the second class, these papers are recommended as a good starting point. The authors present their material clearly, and in the language of a librarian.—Howard W. Dillon, Ohio State University.
