tells it well. As with other great stories, it can be read at several levels. Simplistically, it relates the conflict between one strong man and his times. At a higher level, however, we can see Everyman, or at least Every-Librarian, striving to protect the integrity of his profession against the unpredictable caprice of social upheaval. To the degree that the title of the book is warranted, it refers to the universality of the latter level.——David Kaser, Graduate Library School, Indiana University, Bloomington.

OTHER BOOKS OF INTEREST TO ACADEMIC LIBRARIANS

Keller, Clara Downs. Union Catalogs and Lists: Aspects of National and California Coverage. (Occasional Papers, no.114) Champaign, Ill.: Graduate School of Library Science, University of Illinois, 1974. 40p. $2.00 ($1.00 prepaid.)

Martin, Lowell A. Adults and the Pratt Library: A Question of the Quality of Life. (Deiches Fund Studies of Public Library Service, no.4) Baltimore, Md.: Enoch Pratt Free Library, 1974. 85p. $2.50.

